

Five Points Baptist Church

Several years ago, Five Points Baptist Church embarked on a search for a local bank. Their objective was to find a bank where knowledgeable and trusted advisors made local decisions. Their main focus was selecting the right bank that would effectively manage the church's financial resources. Additionally, they sought a banking institution that valued and fostered relational trust, which held great importance for the church. "We have discovered that banking local over a number of years creates that relational trust we were looking for," said Pastor Drew Heurion. "We are truly thankful for the work Robertson Banking Company does for us and our community."
